

Dear Campus Community,

Now at the midpoint of the fall semester, I want to take a moment to recognize the effort and dedication that define our Triton College community. Whether you are a faculty member inspiring learning in and out of the classroom or a staff member supporting our operations behind the scenes, while balancing work and life responsibilities—thank you. Your hard work and dedication continue to move us forward.

No matter what you are navigating this semester, I encourage you to be proud of the work you are doing and the progress you are making. Each step you take represents hard work and a commitment to your success and to the mission we share as a college.

Through our many programs and initiatives, Triton College remains committed to creating conditions where all students can thrive. For example, this fall marks the opening of FAFSA application season, and our Financial Aid Department is actively supporting students through workshops and one-on-one assistance to help them complete their applications with confidence. We also recognize the power of mentorship—pairing new faculty members with experienced colleagues and fostering meaningful student mentoring relationships that build connection and community. The college is also advancing its academic innovation efforts by identifying courses and programs to be offered in 8-week terms, providing students with more flexible and focused options for degree completion.

At the heart of these and so many other efforts is a shared vision that connects learning, opportunity and community. Our work together empowers students through education, supporting employees through professional growth, and building partnerships that strengthen our region. Together, these initiatives form a foundation for student success, institutional sustainability and innovation—both for our college and the individuals and communities we serve.

Thanks again for your continued dedication and making Triton College a community where everyone can learn and thrive. Let's keep students on their path, encouraging students to register early for spring semester courses and to connect with their advisor.

With appreciation,
President Moore
